

PRESIDENT'S CORNER

ABOUT FACE . . .

The Bicentennial Year was a proper time to review our history as a nation--and as an institution. It helped us understand what we came from and what we are today. It also helped us appreciate the obstacles our predecessors faced and their commitment and determination in surmounting them.

As this first month of U. S. Century III begins, we should make an about face, look ahead and identify the opportunities and problems we anticipate at Lycoming and in higher education in general. Several have already cast their shadows.

1. The pool of college-bound freshmen is dwindling. Census data show that there are about 16 million high-school-age students today. In ten years, this number will be fewer than 12 million, a decline of over 25%. One can only speculate as to the percentage of high school graduates who will want to go to college in 1987.

The impact of this development began to show itself in 1970, and since then no fewer than seventy small independent colleges have either closed or merged with state systems.

One prediction can be made with confidence: competition in recruiting each new class will become keener and more difficult. Our admissions staff will need all the help they can get from us, from our administrators, faculty members, alumni and current students and parents.

2. So long as inflation persists, the cost of going to college--as well as almost everything else--will continue to increase. Lycoming continually attempts to make our operations more efficient. But since all colleges are labor intensive in nature (a high percentage of their budgets go for salaries) there are limits to staff reductions beyond which the educational program will surely suffer. Were this to occur at Lycoming, it would become all the more difficult to attract the type student the institution needs. This sort of vicious downward spiral has grave consequences--no pun intended! Your personal opportunity to help Lycoming has never been greater! Help us promote student recruitment.

It is clear that more emphasis must be placed on fund raising. During 1976, the Lycoming College Fund produced about 42% more contributions than the 1975 fund. This is very encouraging and the College is grateful to those who supported our efforts. At the same time, we must admit to ourselves that Lycoming still trails behind many similar colleges with respect to support from its alumni, friends, and other constituencies.

Lycoming is too dependent on student fees, making the College vulnerable to enrollment fluctuations. This situation makes reliable planning in personnel staffing and program development very difficult. But there are Over the Top!

We are delighted to report that the $76,000 goal for the '76 Lycoming College Fund has been exceeded. At this writing, the total is $82,765, and December-dated checks are still arriving. Alumni contributions accounted for $43,300 and non-alumni gifts $39,465. This represents a 42% increase over the 1975 fund. A complete accounting of all gifts and contributions--and the contributors--for 1976 will appear in the March issue of the Lycoming College Report.

We are very grateful to alumni, trustees, parents, friends, faculty, administrators, and businesses and industries who helped achieve our first dollar-goal for the Lycoming College Fund. This money is very important! But the good will, concern, and confidence your gifts represent are equally gratifying. We thank you sincerely and trust that Lycoming will warrant your continuing support throughout U. S. Century III.

Place us in your will and your support may last even longer!

The 1977 fund opened on January 1, (we operate on a calendar-year basis) but we have not yet established its goal. This will be announced in a later issue of the Lycoming College Report.

GOOD SAMARITANS

During the fall semester, many of our students involved themselves and their organizations in good works of various sorts. They deserve recognition and commendation for these activities and we list them below briefly for all to see.

Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity

"Ugly Man on Campus Contest" raised $400 for the American Cancer Society.

Hallowe'en Party for Bethune-Douglass children.

Worked with Crippled Children and their building projects.

Organized programs for the aged in Lysock View.

Christmas Party for Bethune-Douglass children.

Assisted local churches with toy drive.

Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity

"Big Brother Program" - members work with male children from town as friends and guides.

Christmas Party for "Little Brothers" and "Little Sisters" (sponsored by the Crescents, an affiliated women's group).

Lysock View - took residents on trips outside the home for an evening.

Assisted in the program of a Webelos Cub Scout program.

Sigma Pi Fraternity

Raised approximately $1,000 for the American Cancer Society through the "Send a Mouse to College" program.

Theta Chi Fraternity

Participated in a Bike-A-Thon March of Dimes - raised about $35.

Provided a Thanksgiving Dinner to a needy family.

Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity

Raised $2,300 for the Multiple Sclerosis Society through their "Haunted House" project. Over the past three years, they have raised over $6,000.

Participated in March of Dimes Bike-A-Thon, raising $193.

Christmas Party for children at Kennedy-King Manor.

Kappa Delta Rho Fraternity

Cooperated with Williamport Fire Department to collect and renovate toys for needy children.

Sponsored Christmas Party for 14 underprivileged children.

Beta Phi Gamma

New sorority being organized provided a food basket for a needy family at Thanksgiving.

TKE Little Sisters

Worked with the fraternity on the "Haunted House" project.

Contributed $50 to St. Jude's Hospital for Children.

Sponsored Christmas Party for School of Hope children.

Sent Christmas cards to residents of Ly-

two obvious solutions and opportunities: increase annual support and build the endowment. Neither will be accomplished quickly, but greater attention and effort will be devoted to these goals.

3. Important and difficult decisions lie ahead concerning the curriculum and academic program. Higher education has experienced more than a decade of revising calendars and requirements, and of implementing so-called innovations of all kinds. Much of this experimental probing has been productive in educating young people for a changing world. Efforts, by some institutions, however, were clearly intended only to attract more students. The jury is still out, we are confident the verdict will support Lycoming's commitment to demanding degree requirements.

Another debate involves the liberal arts devotees versus the career education promoters. This argument heats up every time the job market for graduates gets tight. Liberal arts purists contend that the common culture of educated people is being neglected. Careerists rebut by arguing that education for employment is the only justification for spending four years and thousands of dollars in pursuit of a degree. Each position has some validity. We predict that the stance taken by Lycoming College to offer liberal arts programs and sensitive career counseling will serve our students best.

4. Finally, changes in the living environment of students will continue into the future. Many changes have already been made to give students more freedom and responsibility and to reduce the in-loco-parentis roles of the institutions. But student expectations for other changes continue; the perennial wish to have alcohol on campus is only one example. Responses to each request or demand will have to be made in the best interest of the students and the College. Here the opportunity for error is as great as the opportunity for success!

Looking ahead to these problems and opportunities, we all have our work cut out for us. Not all of it will be pleasant or simple. We will surely make mistakes but we'll do our best to make Lycoming an even better college!

CAMPUS NOTES

ROBERT FALK, theatre department, has been selected to adjudicate performances for the American College Theatre Festival at Clarion State College, Allentown College of St. Frances de Sales, Middlesex County Community College (N.J.), University of Pittsburgh/Johnstown, Rutgers University/Camden College, Pennsylvania State University/Behrend College, California State College, SUNY/Binghamton, and Skidmore College.

JOHN WHELAN, philosophy department, was awarded a certificate of recognition for participating in a faculty seminar in India during the summer of 1976, sponsored by the Association of Colleges and Universities for International-Intercultural Studies.

ROBERT J. GLUNK, registrar, reported that the FTE (full-time equivalent) enrollment for the Spring Semester is 1247 compared with 1246 for the same term last year. Applications for admission to the Fall Semester, 1977, are running slightly ahead of the same date a year ago.

DAVID RIFE, English department, has had a study entitled "Hamilton Wright Mabie: An Annotated Bibliography of Primary and Secondary Materials" published in the current issue (Autumn 1976) of American Literary Realism (pp. 315-380).

ROGER SHIPLEY, art department, has had one of his sculptures accepted into the Fifty-seventh Annual May Show sponsored by the Cleveland Museum of Art. The show, which is normally held in May, was held in December this year because of Bicentennial Exhibitions.

FACULTY SABBATICALS

Four members of the faculty are on sabbatical leave during the spring semester: Dr. Roger W. Opdahl, economics department; Gary Dartt, theatre department; Mrs. Gertrude Madden, head of the English Department; and Dr. John F. Piper, Jr., history department.

We understand that Dr. Opdahl will devote his time to writing a book on basic economic principles in easy-to-understand terminology. He will remain in the Williamsport area.

Gary Dartt and his wife, Brenda, will spend the spring months researching at home and abroad for new source material for future Arena productions. They will travel to England in March where they will see as much theatre as possible in London and other English cities. Gary and Brenda are responsible for the outstanding sets and costumes in Arena productions.

Mrs. Gertrude Madden is already in Florida where she is writing and escaping from the cold. She also plans to do research at the University of Pennsylvania for journal articles on Nathaniel Hawthorne and Sir Thomas Malory. Later in the spring, Prof. Madden and Mr. Madden will travel to England where they intend to visit some of the sites where scholars are "digging" for clues to the Arthurian legends, notably Tintagel, supposed site of Camelot.

Dr. John Piper and his wife, Margaret, and two children will leave in January for five or six months study in England and travel on the Continent. Prof. Piper will be a visiting scholar at Cambridge University where he will be making use of the many libraries. He will be working to complete a book on early twentieth-century American religious life.

Carol Anderson '67 Ordained to Episcopal Priesthood

Carol Anderson Receives Congratulations from Retired Episcopal Bishop Horace Donegan After Ordination

A former semiprofessional softball player who has rounded the bases, as it were, to score a "first" in the Episcopal Diocese of New York State, is the Rev. Carol Anderson, one of Lycoming College's most illustrious recent alumni.

Monday night (January 3) she received the vestments of the priesthood, a white chalice and stole, in St. James Church on Madison Avenue in New York City.

A native of Asbury, N.J., Miss Anderson played semiprofessional baseball briefly for the New Jersey Marauders after her graduation from high school. She quit, however, to enroll at Lycoming College where she earned the bachelor of arts degree in religion in 1967.

Raised a Methodist, she was not confirmed in the Episcopal Church until she was halfway through the Episcopal Theological Seminary in Cambridge, Mass. She did not aspire to the priesthood at that time, but enrolled simply to study theology.

She was the recipient in 1973 of Lycoming College's Outstanding Achievement Award after having been ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church two years earlier. She was cited for her dedication and determination to open the priesthood to women. In 1972, she was called to be assistant rector at St. James Church.

She has always viewed the priesthood as a function, something with which a person's sexuality has nothing to do. Denial of ordination, in her opinion, was a denial of a human right.

The 31-year-old priest was one of four women who in 1971 organized the Episcopal Women's Caucus to spearhead the drive for women priests. She traveled extensively throughout the country, speaking to further the cause. But Miss Anderson chose not to participate with the 11 women who were ordained in 1974 in Philadelphia without church sanction.

She wrote her bishop at that time, deploring "having to choose between my sisters and my ministry."

She returned to her alma mater in November, 1972, to participate in a colloquium. "The Women's Movement Toward an Equal Society." She will return to Williamsport again March 20 to speak on the Lycoming campus.

A vibrant brown-haired woman who stands five feet 10 inches tall and likes mountain climbing, Miss Anderson commented that the black movement and the women's movement have the same theme. People who have been kept from rights must begin taking those rights--and themselves--seriously.

"I don't mind people who oppose me," she said, "so long as they are not apathetic."

Miss Anderson plans to remain at St. James Church although she has already been contacted by a parish in Massachusetts which is seeking a rector.

As a Lycoming College senior, the priest most of that year at Clarion College in Orangeburg, S.C., a predominantly black institution. As her interest in civil rights grew, she found that many of the leaders with whom she worked in the drive for racial equality were Episcopal priests. That, she said, was one reason for having leaned toward the Episcopal Church.

After her graduation from theological seminary, she was offered jobs in seven parishes, more than any of her male classmates. Before accepting her position at St. James Church, she worked as a researcher at the Episcopal Mission Society in New York City, developing a hospital chaplaincy program. She was a chaplain at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston and did clinical pastoral work at the University of Colorado Medical Center.

"As an Episcopal chaplain," she said, "I discovered five minutes after I began my job that I would need ordination to do it properly. I was called to the bedside of a dying woman who needed the sacraments. I could not bring them to her, and I could not find a priest in time."

Miss Anderson has been an instructor in homiletics and parish ministry at the General Seminary in New York City and at the Institute of Theology of the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine. She is the Episcopal representative to the National Council of Churches' Task Force on Women.

Miss Anderson is not concerned over speculation that women priests may encounter problems when seeking jobs as rectors.

"I want to be a parish minister," she said. "What I'm about is being a God person."

Warrior Sports

BRUCE L. SWANGER

With the winter sports schedule approaching the halfway point, only the wrestlers among the three Lycoming intercollegiate varsity teams have managed to compile a winning record.

Budd Whitehill's wrestlers, rated fourth in the nation among Division III schools in the latest poll conducted by the Wrestling Coaches Association of America, are off to a fine 4-2 start with perhaps the toughest schedule ever faced by a Lyco team. The Warriors competed in a 10-team invitational meet at Bucknell before embarking on a schedule which included, among others, such wrestling powerhouses as Navy, North Carolina State, the University of Pittsburgh, Princeton, Rider, the University of Maryland, Wilkes, Franklin and Marshall and West Chester, all Division I schools.

Lycoming easily defeated Mansfield State, Oswego and Kings in the first three meets before going against Navy, North Carolina State and Princeton in a quadrangular match at Princeton. The Warriors lost to the Mid-dies, one of the Division I top-ranked teams, before defeating Princeton and then losing a heartbreaking 20-18 decision to NC State. Two individual matches against the Wolfpack were decided in favor of State by a total of eight seconds riding time. Four of the Warrior regulars are undefeated, including juniors Bill Beasley (118), of Chesapeake, Va., and Harry Shaw (142), of Bellefonte, and seniors Craig Savitsky (150), of Old Bridge, N.J., and Steve Borja (158), of Woodlyn. The Warriors were placed sixth in the nation in the first poll conducted by the coaches association before moving up to fourth in the subsequent rating.

COACH BURCH OPTIMISTIC

Although the Warrior basketball team approached the midway mark in the schedule with a 3-6 record, Coach Dutch Burch remains optimistic about the team's chances of making the Middle Atlantic Conference playoffs for the second consecutive year. The Warriors went into the major portion of the conference schedule with a 1-2 record after losses to Scranton and Juniata and a victory over Wilkes before the long holiday break began in December. It will probably take six victories in the remaining seven conference contests to make the playoffs, and Coach Burch believes the team has the ability to reach that goal despite a rather poor start.

The Warriors exhibited a well-balanced attack with three players, senior Jeff Billman, of Tamaqua, and sophomores Mark Molesky, of Montoursville, and Mike Brown, of Havertown, in a virtual tie for top scoring honors with each averaging approximately 15 points per game. Molesky was handicapped in two games by a mask worn to protect his nose injured in the Juniata contest. Bill Conroy, the Warriors' 6-6 junior captain from Philadelphia, has been the big man under the boards in the early games and is leading the Middle Atlantic Conference in rebounding with an average of 16. His top effort of the season was 25 against Wilkes. Junior Jim DiMarco, of Havertown, has also been making a major contribution to the team from his backcourt position and has been averaging nine points per game.

The cagers have also recorded victories against Allentown and King's College (NY) and have lost to Navy, Elmira, Dowling and Lebanon Valley.

FRESHMEN, SENIOR PACE SWIMMERS

The swimming team coached by Mrs. Susan Hetrick has yet to win in four meets against Franklin and Marshall, Dickinson, Elizabethtown and Ursinus. The most consistent point winners for the Warrior mermen, which this year is a combination of the men's and women's teams, have been a freshman, Mark Fultz, of Pittsford, N.Y., and Lynn Martin, a senior from Cherry Hill, N.J., in the swimming events and freshman Bill Torney, of Harrington Park, N.J., in the diving competition.

POST SEASON HONORS CONTINUE FOR WARRIOR FOOTBALL PLAYERS

Post season honors for outstanding performance in the 1976 football season continued to be received by Warrior players when junior middle guard Mike Prowant, of Duboistown, and senior defensive end Steve Weigle, of Williamsport, were accorded Little All-America honorable mention in a nationwide poll of both Division II and Division III colleges conducted by the Associated Press.

Weigle also was selected earlier to the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference All-East team, and both were first-team choices, along with six other teammates, on the Middle Atlantic Conference All-Star team.

The two played key roles on a defensive unit which finished first in rushing in the nation among Division III colleges and second in overall defense. The outstanding defense combined with a revitalized offense sparked the Warriors to the finest season ever recorded by a Lycoming team. They finished with an 8-1 won-lost mark on the way to equaling or breaking 15 individual and team season and single game records.

TWO BASKETBALL PLAYERS CITED FOR OUTSTANDING PERFORMANCES

Two Warrior basketball players were honored for outstanding play in the early weeks of the season when junior center Bill Conroy and senior forward Jeff Billman were named to the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference weekly honor roll.

Conroy, of Philadelphia, was cited for his play in the Dowling and Wilkes games when he pulled down 41 rebounds and scored 25 points. He grabbed 25 rebounds in the Wilkes contest to help spark the 80-66 victory over the Colonels.

Billman, of Tamaqua, was honored for his performance in a holiday tournament at Lebanon Valley College when he scored 41 points and added 21 rebounds as the Warriors split in the tournament. Billman netted 26 points and pulled down 15 rebounds to lead a 92-73 win over King's College (NY) in the preliminary game. Despite missing most of the second half because of foul trouble, he scored 15 points and gathered in 6 rebounds in an 84-73 loss to host Lebanon Valley in the championship contest. Billman and teammate Mike Brown, of Havertown, were also chosen to the all-tournament team for their performances.

CATHY TADDEO KNIGHT BAKER is one of the first female inspectors to work in the Philadelphia office of U.S. Customs. Cathy has been a customs inspector for five years, a job she says she finds interesting because her work is varied from day to day. As part of her job, she sometimes has to spend as many as three days on an oil tanker in the Delaware Bay supervising the transfer of oil from the tanker to a barge. Oil must be taken off the tankers into barges until the tanker ride high enough to travel up the shallow Delaware River beyond the Philadelphia deep water port. She said she goes out to the tankers in launches and climbs a rope ladder to the deck which she says is a tricky maneuver. For the period that the oil is being transferred, she sleeps on the boat. Most of her work is done in an 8:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. day in the Philadelphia area location to which she is assigned. In addition to work on oil tankers, her assignments sometimes take her to the Philadelphia office of National Airport or McGuire Air Force Base. Cathy and her husband, Richard, live in Cinnaminson, NJ.

PATRICIA ASCHINGER ADAMS received the master of education degree from Shippensburg State College on December 10, 1976. Her work was in elementary education.

MELVIN H. CAMPBELL, JR. and MITZI (BENSINGER '72) CAMPBELL announced the birth of a son, Ian Beart, born November 2, 1976. The Campbells live in York, PA.

JIM and SANDE (MYERS) SCOTT announced the birth of a son, born January 5, 1977. They live in North Windham, ME.

1971

PAUL D. MARSDEN and Donna K. Barton were married October 23, 1976, in Calvary United Methodist Church, Fayetteville, PA. Paul is an export administrator for Grove Manufacturing Co. They are living in Chambersburg, PA.
